THINKS A. E. F. WILL SHAPE OUR POLITICS

Miss Hosford Savs Returned Soldiers Will Make Themselves Heard.

Pershing and Wood Named as Possible Presidential Candidates.

That American politics will be molded and shaped for a number of years by the returning members of the American Expeditionary Forces out of the state of sectionalism. We find employment by applying to E. E. is the opinion expressed by Hester E. know no North, no East, no South, no Fritzell, farm help specialist of the Hosford in a letter to the Evening Missourian from Paris. Miss Hosford, a political writer living in New Jersey, has been in France for the last nine months. She is a sister of Grover C. Hosford, formerly professor of law in the University.

"Many soldiers who have not paid much attention to politics in the past are going to give considerable attention to public questions in the future," writes Miss Hosford. "When these privates get back into civilian clothes we shall hear from them. They will have something to say about the candidates for 1920, and I predict that I am not overstating it when I say that the members of the A. E. F. will be a determining factor in selecting the next four presidents."

"In the event that a number of military candidates will be enter- form in the minds of all Americans for the body of Raymond Powell, the tained as possibilities," she writes, "it is plausible that we should have possibly two military candidates from the same state. The good old "show-me" state has never shown a streak of molly-coddle. It is still battle ground, It has furnished many red-blooded Republicans and Democrats, all kinds have been in Columbia on business, of both parties: plutocratic Pluto- returned to their home in Centralia crats, plutocratic Democrats, demo- this morning. cratic Plutocrats and democratic Democrats and autocrats that were visiting in Columbia, returned to her not democratic at all.

"Of course, the only acceptable candidate for 1920 will be one who stands for a sane national defense without military madness. Bolshevism is a result of the collapse of military madness. A great menace at the present time would be a small clique of general staff officers in power who had been at some time inoculated with military ideas similar to those of the Prussians. out of the state of sectionalism. We know no North, no East, no South, no West, but we love our country, every part the best; but are we not morting too fast? Have we bridged the chasm since 1865 from Sectionalism to Internationalism? Would it not be better to stop until we have a well-defined and clear policy of Nationalism? The Monroe Doctrine, up to the present, has been our one national policy, to which we have tenaciously clung and which we have nationally recognized and accepted as a very vital and fundamental part of our political existence. We are a young nation. We must not grow too fast or we will wake up some morning and find that our clothes fit too soon. We must strengthen our policy of mationalism to a very appreciable degree so that it will take root and form in the minds of all Americans before we become too thoroughly internationalistic."

Consumers Must Enter Market Now to Avert the Danger.

By United Press.

CHICAGO, May 21.—The United States will be in the grip of a coal famine in sixty or ninety days and prices will be in excess of the highest wartime prices unless consumers immediately enter the market with huge orders. This prediction was made today by J. D. A. Morrow general director of distribution for the Coal Administration attending the National Coal Association convention here today. Lack of fuel orders, a grave labor situation, curtailment of production and insufficient railroad facilities were given as causes for anticipation of the famine and high prices.
